We are fast approaching the 10 year anniversary of the passing of 'Our Dusty' - the GREATEST FEMALE SINGER we have ever known. What are your plans for that day - how will you remember Dusty in your own way?

I can't believe 10 years have passed. I remember getting the news as if it was yesterday. I'm spending a couple of days with friends, both Dusty fans, so she's going to be talked about, watched and listened to, that's for sure. I'll try and catch the Radio Manchester programme in the evening too.

Like Carole, I can't believe that ten years have gone by. 😭😭

I suppose the only way, is to celebrate Dusty's life, and the brilliant legacy of music she left us. 😊

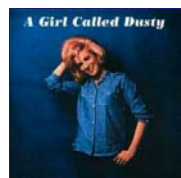

I shall do this by playing my favourite Dusty Album.. 'Everything's Coming Up Dusty' and remembering the way she was. 😊

I shall play Dusty all day and remember her and the music.

I agree it doesn't seem like 10 years...its one of those times when we remember what we were doing and where we were when we heard the sad news.

Will - don't know about the other channels but I contacted the BBC towards the end of last year to ask if anything would be done and received the following reply :

"Thanks for your e-mail.

I do not know of any plans for a programme to commemorate the life of Dusty Springfield. It's important to note that our future schedules are only confirmed up to seven days in advance, which means it's not possible to give details for programmes beyond this period. I'm sure you can appreciate that plans can change and I don't want to give you information that could prove incorrect.

I've registered your suggestion for a commemorative programme on our audience log. This is a daily report of audience feedback that's circulated to many BBC staff, including members of the executive board, channel controllers and other senior managers. The audience logs are seen as important documents that can help shape decisions about future programming and content.

Thanks again for contacting the BBC.

I'm going to play all her albums, one for every hour, and when I'm done with that, I'll have a lovely dinner and toast her memory. Funny thing, I didn't even know who she was when I heard the TV announcer (here in the US) say she had passed away. They showed a lovely shot of her, and even then, I was struck by 'something in her eyes'.

yes lets hope they do something for her. I have written to radio 2 to ask Terry and Ken if they will acknowledge her and play her for all her fans and as a tribute to her.I also asked Brian Matthew if he would do a special spot for her on the SOTS. on the Saturday before.dont know if they will but at least if we are all asking them then they cant say they didnt know.

I will definitely be playing Dusty music all day, the same as I do every day, as most of her songs are on my playlist, and I play them all the time. Maybe I'll crack open a bottle of bubbly and toast her too. But that may be two days later.

Is anyone going to her marker to put extra flowers on.

I'm lighting a candle for her (soul) in the evening hours and sending a little pray.

I'll be sad, that I've never met her but grateful too, that she was here and enrichs our life with her voice and music time and time again.

I'll play some of her music (of course), and I'll put my Dusty shrine in order. I haven't had one since I moved half a year ago, so it's about time. 😊

Like Cor, I'll tend to my Dusty shrine and will light a couple of candles there and listen to D's music. I'll do that first thing in the morning in the treasured moments of quiet before the day gets crazy.

Right now I'm thinking about how different things would be if Dusty had never appeared in our lives. That gives pause, eh?

Very glad to hear that Dusty's marker in Henley is being visited and kept in good order. I'm sure D appreciates all this!

Has there ever been a thread here with pictures of everyone's Dusty shrines? That might be a nice thing to do as we're here in Dusty season. I recall seeing some pics of Clare's Dusty wall. Has anyone else posted pics?

Playing Dusty when I can today - the Simply Dusty box set is in the car. Also joining this group last night. I've been on other groups in the past, on Andy's site and Dustymail but have been out of touch for the last year or so - the 10 year anniversary is what prompted me to join here.

Today was a beautiful early Spring day in Henley, I'm sure it would have been the sort of day that Dusty loved. A couple of my pictures didn't work for some reason but here are the one's that did.....

Kathy, I didn't read your post before I went, but the LTD flowers were definitely there, I saw the card. Everything had already been placed quite close together and there were a lot of other tributes placed around them, so I can't really describe them for you. You can see the card behind my dark pink roses.

Carole, the bouquets and tributes are stunningly beautiful - thank you for photographing them and sharing them with those of us who weren't able to be there.

I hope that in amongst all that reminiscing, there were a few smiles at the remembrance of friends past and present; I don't doubt for a second that those same friends are thinking of you today, too. Somewhere (up on the roof), a radiant young lady and two very dashing young men are whispering your name between songs xx

There weren't many cards Will. I took flowers on behalf of Cas,Pat (pale pink roses) and another lady at Pat's request (pansy basket), there was one from DSN and the basket at the front left was from the O'Brien family, but not THE O'Brien family, if you see what I mean. I remember a couple of other cards but didn't know who they were and the rest seemed to be anonymous.

Thanks Carole; I just thought it was lovely that so many people remembered Dusty yesterday and went to the trouble either of visiting her stone or having flowers placed there. There are so many kind and thoughtful people and I was really touched by seeing all those exquisite flowers.

They all work together well, don't they?

Did you artfully place those rosebuds on the stone, Carole?

Carole, have you any idea where the other flowers came from and who placed them?

Will

I can help you with that one Will... I went along on Saturday 1st and the only flowers there were the LTD bouquet and a few pink roses 🌍. The rest of the flowers were placed by myself and 7 other members of the DSN who also came along that day!

And with all the lovely blooms placed by Carole I think we all did her proud with the lovely selection, don't you?!! 🍏🍌🍌

P.S. The card with the white/yellow flower on attached to the grey vase at the front was from our Janice!

Carole G--What a nice surprise to look in here and find your pictures of Dusty's marker looking so lovely. Uplifting on a rather bittersweet day.
