As you all know March 2009 will mark the 10th anniversary of our dear Dustys passing. I am looking to organise a memorial service for Dusty at St. Marys Church, Henley on Thames in March/April next year. I have been in touch with the vicar there and he would like details of the service and obviously a Firm date. I would be grateful if you could let me know what format the service should take. Presumably a combination of Dusty recordings, Hymns and Tributes to Dusty by those who knew her. Look forward to your thoughts and ideas.!

Excellent that you have spoken to the vicar, Chris. Just a thought off the top of my head--as so many fans will be in the area for Dusty Day next April, perhaps you could consider a date near then. Simon says Dusty Day will be the 12th or 19th of April, so perhaps the 11th or 19th would work? The Saturday before Dusty Day is a day that fans often travel to Henley. I freely admit my 'selfish' desire to be able to attend both--it would be too expensive for a number of us to travel twice to the London area in two months.

I will ponder this further and add more ideas later. I look forward to hear what others are thinking.

That's a lovely idea, Chris. I'd have to agree with Nancy on trying to have the service the day before Dusty Day. I'm sure many of us going to DD would love to attend it, myself included.

I like the idea of a hymn or two to be sung, and of course for our most beloved recordings of Miss Dusty to be played. In my church meeting once a month, the altar/podium is opened up to anyone who feels moved to say something of a spiritual nature. Something like that would be wonderful; It would be lovely if we all had a moment to say what Miss Dusty meant to us, but that could go on for days, so perhaps just Simon, Madeline, and Pat (if they are able to attend) would be able to grace us with their thoughts if there isn't a way to work out letting everybody who would like to say something speak.

I agree it's a lovely idea, the day before Dusty Day would be perfect, if at all possible.

I hate to put the mockers on this, but I understand Dusty didn't want a memorial service that is why one has never been held.

Sorry.

Perhaps you could share more of what you know of this, Tom?

Is it your sense that although Dusty disapproved of it at the time, that she never wanted such an event to take place? Even ten years on?

I think a Memorial Service is a good idea. I'd definitely come along.

I can understand not wanting an annual memorial service, but I think one on a special anniversary (10th year since her passing) couldn't hurt. Perhaps if there's a memorial this year, then the next time it could be done is the 20th or 25th anniversary.

Odd dilemma - Tom - we do need to know more. Was this Dusty's stated wish then?

Maybe Pat and Simon could also be consulted as they will know what would be appropriate and in accordance with Dusty's wishes. Much as I would like to attend such a service I would not do so if I felt Dusty would not have approved - there would be no point.

I'd like to attend a memorial service, but certainly not against Miss Dusty's wishes. I'd like to know more too, Tom.

Carole will also be home soon, and she has good contact with Pat and Simon, who may be home from holiday by then. So let's all take a deep breath for the moment.

I thought it strange that there was no memorial service some time after the actual funeral service as is the custom in the showbiz and celebrity world. The statement was made by a certain VW after the funeral service, but then I could be wrong. Don't want to upset anyone.

Oh, I'm sure you wouldn't upset anyone, Tom. As you say, the comment about no memorial service came from VW. I think Nancy has it right; we can wait until Carole gets home from holiday and see if she'd be so kind as to ask Pat and Simon. They would probably know for sure what Miss Dusty's wishes about a memorial service were, since they spent the most time with her during her final months.

I'm sure anyone of us could write to Pat or email Simon. I just feel it might be a bit of an "iffy" subject to ask.

Perhaps anyone 'could' but I don't think anyone 'should'; I think a bit more diplomacy is needed. My suggestion would be to wait until Carole gets back and mention it to her - she may well know more about this subject from Pat.

I have contact info for them both, but Carole knows them both better than the rest of us, thus my suggestion that we wait for her input. She would also know if there are other people who might be consulted, e.g. Paul.

When is she back from vacation, Nancy? I've always envied Europeans...they seem to get so much more vacation time than we do!

Simon tells me that he has had discussions with Pat and the Estate and that they don't feel the need for a memorial service for Dusty in light of the fact that the ongoing Dusty Days in themselves provide a memorial to her. That's not to say that they hadn't already discussed the possibility of one, Simon had contacted the rector at St Mary's in June, but then decided against doing anything official. They didn't think it would have been something Dusty would have wanted as she wasn't "starry" like that. It would have been at the the beginning of March if it happened and not near DD though. I've been to Henley on 2nd of March in the past and I'm sure we all remember Dusty in our own ways at that time too. I know that Simon has mailed Chris privately with his and Pat's thoughts. All that said, there is nothing to stop a service going ahead of course, should Chris feel he would like that to happen and should the rector be obliging.

Thanks for the info, Carole. If Chris decides to have a memorial service, I'm sure a lot of people would like to attend. As Miss Dusty was Irish, I think she'd get a chuckle out of Dusty Day, as it seems more along the lines of a wake to me; an informal (though organized) celebration of her life and music.

Sorry fellow Dusty fans for suggesting a memorial service for Dusty. I am quite happy to abide with Simon and Pats wishes that Dusty Day should be her best memorial.
