Sadly not available on Starbucks UK web. Can our Americans friends tell us if they play certain singers in their coffee shops. In UK "Nero's" coffee houses promote singers for a time and if their houses are big enough then the artist plays the odd gig. Emily Maguire (my niece by marriage) had such a session last year, it was great to go into my local and hear her singing.

I bought a copy today! I was stunned to see a Dusty CD sitting pretty on the Starbucks shelf and quickly added it to my order to the cashier's amusement LOL Not the world's greatest track listing (a previously unreleased alternate take or two would have been nice, and perhaps the Jools Hollans live version of the closing track) and the liner notes are laden with historical errors, but anything that keeps Dusty's legacy alive and well is inherently good to me.

Oh, good to know! I'll take a look next time I buy an overpriced cup of java. 😊

I agree, we have to support Dusty wherever "she" appears. We used to joke on the forum about seeing CD displays in stores and placing any Dusty CDs in the front. 😊🙏 Of course there aren't many places that even sell CDs anymore. 😞

Perhaps Rhino will sense a warm response to this Dusty set, and perhaps us fans can contact them and persuade them to comb the vaults (theirs or Universal/Mercury's) for any shelved goodies such as the alternate takes from the Cameo sessions, etc. to include on future products. (I know, I'm always daydreaming about "lost" goodies seeing the light of day...)

Despite its shortcomings, this was a thoughtfully assembled compilation with extensive liner notes and beautiful photos. If such efforts can be made once, here's to hoping they'll be made again... only bettered.

Even if they tacked on just one "exclusive" track to these sort of items, it would boost demand that much more.

It's a new entry at #96 on this weeks Billboard Top 200 album chart.

Zac Brown Band Continues 'Sweet' Success Atop Country Airplay Chart

Zac Brown Band achieves its landmark 10th No. 1 on Billboard's Nielsen BDS-based Country Airplay chart, where "Sweet Annie" advances 2-1. The new leader is the Georgia band's first since "Goodbye in Her Eyes" spent the first of three weeks at No. 1 slightly more than a year ago.

Thanks for the picture of Dusty in her tennis outfit. 😊 She looks so cute.

Fought the crowds and got into the Starbucks today--only had to park a block away. Madness on the roads because ANOTHER snowstorm is bearing down on us. 😞

I chided the clerk for having no Dusty CDs on display 😡 and made him check in back as I wanted to buy FOUR. 😊 He found only ONE 😞 (which is posing for this photograph.) Advised him to put next shipment on prominent display as this album is charting!!! 😊 Do you want any coffee, he asked? No, I said, my work here is finished. 🙄

What has coffee to do with anything?

Well, it may be the reason that Just A Little Lovin' (Early In The Mornin') was not included on the CD. It contains the line 'Beats a cup of coffee for startin' off the day'. Definitely not what Starbucks wants to hear.

If you use the link contained in Clive's posting, which started off this thread, you get told, 'This item is not currently available'. If you access starbucks.com without using that link, Dusty's CD does not appear in Music & Books at all. If it was just a question of running out of stock, you would think they would still show the item, but mark it accordingly. Strange.

I was both surprised and delighted when I saw that it was #96! Surprised because it's not the normal run of the mill hits type collection so I just wonder who is buying it considering that it only contains 3 US hits! Is there a TV or newspaper campaign promoting it in the US? Based upon some research that I've carried out it must have sold approx 2k copies to make the top 100, that is of course dependant on overall record sales for the week.

A drop from #96 to #124 on a compilation of 40-50 year old music w/ limited commercial availability and minimum promotion is most definitely not too shabby! Honestly I was expecting a much larger decline.

My best friend (who knows I'm a huge Dusty fan) texted me a few days ago to let me know about the CD. He texted a photo with the tag "Miss Dusty at Starbucks!" I hadn't had the chance to go to a Starbucks, but today I got out from work early, and since there's one only a block from my work... :D

It's an interesting compilation to me. No songs I haven't heard before, of course, but some of them were, if not head scratchers, unusual to include on a compilation CD. "I've Been Wrong Before"...while certainly among the finest tracks on ECUD...I've never seen it on a compilation. Same thing with "Twenty Four Hours from Tulsa". And the version of "What Do You Do When Love Dies?" has the additional strings that I'm not used to hearing.

I'm also quite pleased to see a few tracks from the Jeff Barry sessions make it onto the CD. And pity only one song from 'Cameo' and none from Longing through Reputation was on it. While the tracks selected really do show off her vocal versatility and emotional range, it might have been nice to see a lesser known gem from some of those albums.

Either way, I'm glad I bought it.

She's still hanging on 😊 Down from 124 > 137 this week. Is there a TV/newspaper promo? Still puzzling me why it's done so well considering the track list is not mainstream. Of course maybe that's its secret selling feature 😊

Glad our girl is still in the charts. 🙌😞🙌

I don't know why it's done so well when some of the outlets don't have it or have only a few AND it's not available in the Starbucks online store! (I haven't received an answer to my message to them: no surprise 😞)

One of my younger friends bought the CD--she was having a bad week--and has been blaring it on her commute to work, and is quite impressed. Tupelo Honey is her favorite. And she wants more Dusty now. Another friend got a copy for me to bring to England (but I'd already gotten the four I needed) and decided to keep it herself. So this is progress.

I wonder if it had been a regular release just how high it would have reached! I only found out about it via LTD and guessed what it must be when I saw it in the BB Top 200. I don't frequent Starbucks anywhere so I'm sure that there must be lots of people who would want one but are missing out!

I have a friend in NYC who told me it was very well stocked at one of the Starbucks in Manhattan and that one person bought it while he was in line. 🤔

So, my theory is the CD is probably doing best in the big cities, and that's accounting for the majority of sales.

@John- I hate to say it, but had it just been a general release i doubt it would be doing this well. The Starbucks angle not only gives it exposure to the constant stream of customers, but also gives it sort of a cosmopolitan cache.

A few years back, Diana Ross' album Blue- an previously unreleased collection of Jazz standards- was released via Starbucks and also sold well, but it didn't chart as highly (it reached #146).

I have 'Blue' Markus. I was actually given a special edition 😊 Blue was initially sold through Starbucks' US stores for the first 30 days of release. Starbucks immediately sold out of its supply nationwide. The album peaked at #2 on Billboard's Jazz Chart. 'Blue' was of course issued in the UK. I wonder if 'Opus' will get a UK release?

One local Starbucks didn't have the CD when I first requested it. Now they do, and I bought another copy today in case anyone else needs one LOL

I wonder if this is one of the highest-charting, if not the highest-charting, Starbucks CD releases in the history of their music ventures?

At that price they must have been snatching them off the display or off the back of a delivery truck! LOL

Miss S is still hanging on in there 😊 Down from 137 - 174 in her 4th week. 😊 Based on similar sales I reckon that it's sold 4-5k. Not massive but pretty good for material that's been around for years and issued many times.

I believe it's already been noted, but the version of "What Do You Do When Love Dies" featured on this CD includes the orchestral overdubs. To my knowledge, this version has featured only on the A Brand New Me Atlantic/Rhino 1992 deluxe CD and The Legend of Dusty Springfield 4CD boxed set, so it may be considered somewhat of an exclusive track, at least to some Dusty Devotees depending (of course) upon one's own Dusty collection 😊

My pleasure, Lynn! 🎁

I believe I've still got two sealed copies if anyone else is in need of one or both?

As Hall & Oates once said 'she's gone' 🤔 After 4 weeks Dusty has left the BB Top 200 Albums Chart. Of course she may be back depending on available stock in the coffee shops. Keep a look out for her folks 😊
