Radio 2 on New Years Eve there is a programme on at 6.00pm til 7.00 ...Friday night is music night.

A tour of love in the 60's entitled Bare feet and Beehives featuring Liane Carroll.

We should be in luck Liz. In the Radio Times it says 'Liane Carroll interprets 1960s pop gems associated with the likes of Dusty Springfield'.

Good spot Trek, I'd have missed that. I'll probably be out and about but there's always the listen again option. I can't remember if Lianne stepped in when Madeline couldn't make it at DD or if she was appearing anyway, she's certainly on the list for DD 2011. She also appeared on a Friday Night is Music Night earlier this year, one that was dedicated to Dusty, Aretha and Ella I think. Madeline was also on that. The format was a bit weird and quite jazzy, hopefully this one will be different and poppier (is that a word?!).

I heard the trailer for this and Lianne singing the two Dusty songs. I knew from those snippets that I wouldn't bother listening to the show, it's just not my favourite type of singing. From the reports on the other thread from those who did listen, I think you felt the same.
