Northern soul (#p73717)

by Graham2010 » Thu Sep 29, 2011 4:38 pm

I grabbed a bargain recently in Tesco a 2 cd set of Northern Soul Classics for £4!

AND today in Sainsbury's another Northern Soul Cd only £3!!.....AND Dusty is included with "Live it up".

Great tracks which I am sure Dusty would have loved great to hear someone else likes northern as well!! I got a lot of compilations very cheaply, however no dusty tracks on any of them, when i was young i had some vinyl but it got carbooted years ago, there are some great northern soul radio shows on, smooth radio does a great motown show on a saturday night from 6 till 8, on a monday heart and soul radio do a fantastic two hour Northern soul show every monday night from 9 till 11 with Gary Mac. next to dusty its my favourite genre of music, in fact i was out dancing on talc last saturday, at a Wigan casino special held a few miles from us, had a great time

Neil 🍷👍

Like Neil I LOVE Northern soul...but unlike Neil I don't dance on talc anymore - just put it in unusual places! 🤔

When I worked in a record shop, there was a big 'northern soul' crowd who used to buy their records from us - despite it being Oxford, and nowhere near the 'scene' up north. They did, however coach it up to Wigan or Stafford most weekends.

One BIG record for the northern soul crowd was in fact Dusty's 'What's it gonna be', and in fact it DID appear on a northern soul compilation, alongside 23 other great US tracks - the only 'British' track on the album 🎧 🎵

True, there were other 'British' records popular with the northern soul crowd, but most of these were 'made' for 'the scene'. Dusty just did it naturally!! I have the album - but can't locate it right now....also in the series Madeline featured with 'Picture me gone'

Keep the faith

Brian

Picked up another 2 cd set in Tesco priced as £5 but only £3!

Includes Susan Barrett's version of WIGB.....Dusty's vocal is so much better.

I think anybodys vocal is better than susan barretts, i just dont like the pinched way she sings. heres a little interesting something for NS fans

A new film, Northern Soul, is released this week, From the trailer and reviews i've read it looks promising. Apparently it took Elaine Constantine 17 years to bring her idea to screen.Perseverance indeed 🍷👍

I certainly hope this film is released in the US. I have a smart Northern Soul bag Neil gave me, but I need a bit more street cred. 😊
