There are some disturbing pictures of Henley - the waters are rising and more rain is on the way. The Cathedral is fairly close to the river - I hope the flowers don't get washed away:

Maggie - I don't think you need to worry too much. Although the church (Henley residents will love you for calling it a cathedral ! ) is close to the river, it is on raised ground and as far as I know this area on the town has never flooded. I think the river needs to rise by about 20 ft before it gets anywhere near the church

Dusty's gravestone is the town side of the building (i.e as far away from the river)

Ah, good news Brian. Here in Canada any church more than 20 feet high is a cathedral - or a cult 😊

yes it was looking very soggy in Henley and "the Angel on the bridge" pic showed all the picnic tables almost underwater. 😬

I see they had closed the barrage to keep London safe which prob didnt help the Henley area. 😬 as you say Brian, the Church would be very unlucky to be flooded,Im sure it will be ok.

fingers crossed the town isnt damaged. this rain is getting very tedious now.

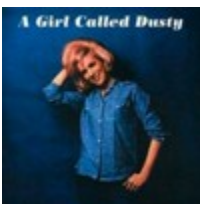

someone make it stop.

I hope welsh Tom wasn't near those tables at Angel on the Bridge!

Good job the church and most of the town is a fair way from the river. The meadows and that area towards the rowing museum may be wet.

Also Frogmill is very close to the river 🙄

Trekk. Often called Carole.

Ev'rything's coming up Dusty.

yes I was thinking about frogmill too Trekkie. its so flat there and the river so near. imagine all those super rats they have there too.

I hope they arent running up the banks looking for a dry billet. 🙄
