Aw, it's Dusty by miles! 🤩

I've always especially loved this somewhat slower version from the Tom Jones show. Love her voice, love her wig, love her dress.

Barbie gives our Dust quite a run for her money! Can't decide which version I like best, but José's no competition. This song needs strings, and preferably lots of'm.

Dusty - better full version

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WMZ2upa3TsQ>
Nina Simone

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DgH3o-5-YG8>
Laura Lee - very different

There are also great versions by Dinah Washington, Bonnie Raitt, Mavis Staples, Fontella Bass, Etta Jones, Ruth Brown, Gladys Knight, Doris Day, Dells, Doris Duke, Barbara George, Jimmy Witherspoon & Rascals.

My favs are by Dusty, Nina, Doris Duke & Mavis Staples.

I fell for Barbra's version first and then years later I heard Dusty's version. Now I totally love them both. I don't think there's miles between them at all! It's a fabulous song in any case.

If anyone here likes Barbra and doesn't have her 'Barbra Joan Streisand' album I recommend that you treat yourself to it. I would bet that Dusty upped the competition with 'Dusty In Memphis'. Carole King followed with 'Tapestry' and Barbra followed with her rather super album.

I'll pass on listening to Jose on this one, thanks.

The first version I remember falling for was by The Fifth Dimension, but theirs doesn't appear to be on youtube.

I've always been fond of Barbra's version, but Dusty's RULES.

Here's a duet version ...along with commentary by the singers.

Nancy, I was all set to say that the 5th Dimension never recorded 'Since I Fell For You' as I have all their albums - or thought I had.

Now I have to track this down.

I used to have an avatar from that show, so there should be one. I'd gladly pass it on to you! 😊

Ahem, I have to admit I didn't even listen to Barb before posting. But now I have! And I prefer the later part of the song where she tosses technical brilliance aside and really goes in for the feeling. Something Dusty has right from the beginning. ... It's just a matter of taste, I guess.
