Liked the outfit too. Must have been the arms 'open wide' day. Or was it laundry day?

I like the very unusual composition of that one Cas, although it does follow the rule of thirds. I'll bet at that moment when the pic was taken, she was singing "belieeeeeeeve me!" :)

I'm sure she liked pop art Mark, the Silver Collection artwork was in that vein and I always liked it too. Being the anorak that I am, I thought I'd mention that the photo of Dusty with Mike and Tom was taken in Soho Square in London. The statue behind them is Charles the second and there is another Springfields pic where Dusty is up on the plinth with the him 😊

Cas, to continue on your sidenote, I checked your profile in case your email was wrong, but it wasn't.

Thank you Will, maybe the fault lies with my server.

Oh, that is brilliant! :D]Really lovely, very vintage and a great likeness...I've always been jealous of people, who can sew and make things like that...looks like you've been a Dusty fan since way back... a life long devotee indeed! 🌟👍

Oh, how lovely, Cas! I always love to see photos like this, where she seems relaxed.

Oh, that is a brilliant shot. So relaxed and natural. I could really use some vanilla ice cream now though...

I have another of the ice cream shots where she was buying it at the van, it was sold through the Bulletin, the photo, not the ice cream 😊 As Cas says, a lot of photo's were taken that day....Dusty with dogs, having coffee, signing autographs, touching up her make-up, with ice cream, leaning out of a car window and climbing gates 😊

I've seen those pics Carole I have them but in very small pics! Both shots are taken at the Van, one a more closeup one than the other. I was really surprised to see this one, I live in hope of finding yet more!

>>climbing gates<<

Well at least no-one on here will ever be caught doing that, eh? ;)
