She used to do little bunny hops 🤩 I always remember "Shake", she could really move and never toppled over once 😊 I think a good example of the tight skirt and smooth moves come in "I Can't Hear You No More" on the RSG Motown show. The way she gets up the stairs and does her little boogie in that skirt, is pure Dusty. I love those photo's Cas, Dolce Vita night club I think, they certainly take me back to the Northern clubs. And well done on the montage there Trek 🤩

Thanks Carole - I don't dislike the picture, quite the reverse, it's just that I've never seen La Dust in sporty gear.

It's unusual isn't it. She wasn't the type to go jogging around Henley High Street, was she.

Dusty liked comfortable loose track style suits later on. I can't imagine her in a truly sporty set of Adidas but you never know!

Her arm movements and gestures are so strong here. She really comes across as a strong and invincible woman as the song goes.

Thank you all for these great pictures.

The arm movements are what I don't like about the picture, I prefer the more genteel ones. This is too punchy, I just find it unattractive.

It's quite an unusual performance. Punchy is the right word. She looks like she could be trying out for a cheering squad. Never seen her jump around like that. I have to say part of the humour of the performance for me is watching the Germans in the beer garden try to catch the beat. LOL.

It's a Drury Lane pic Sarah and yes Sara, that was a bad time hair wise! I had a perm then, half the attraction was that it was EASY! The last one of Treks pictures is from DWD as Alice says, it's one of three and my guess is it was taken on the day Dusty was interviewed by Mike Brown for the Telegraph. He describes her as "The candy-floss hair has gone, replaced by a neat, grey upswept feather cut, and she wears the merest coating of make-up. She is dressed in denim shirt, denim jeans and high heeled white trainers, an ensemble that speaks more of the boutiques of Los Angeles than of London".

Yes this is a super picture, I haven't seen it before, but I love the outfit. At first I thought it was a dress, but looking closer I think it is a jacket over a dress isn't it guys. Whatever it is, it's just lovely. And I'll bet there's a coloured version somewhere. Which may appear any moment now.

No perhaps it is a dress, I can't make my mind up.

I don't think Dust got that one out of a catalogue.

Blimey! That dress is a centre of attention eye boggler! Dusty looks so happy! 😊😊😊

Thanks to the lovely Frans for the colour shot. 😊

Doesn't she though? Just radiant. I think this looks like it was around the time of '...It Begins Again' in early '78.

Thank you Frans for the last one, I have some in colour, but the writing spoils them a bit.

She IS radiant. I wonder if her record had been a hit if her life might have taken a better direction at that point.

That has to be from the Liberace show. He quipped, "Now I know what happened to all my old jewelry."

Thanks Cas! I always love Dusty in colour. You get to see what colour the wigs were!

Thanks for these Josh... My faves are the top ones. 😊

Never seen such a clear pic of Kay O'Brien before either. 🍷

I really can't see much of a facial resemblance between Kay and Dusty. Can anyone else?

The top row ones don't get used a lot, I don't remember ever seeing the full length one anywhere before. Those on the 2nd row, I'm glad aren't used too often! I often think that Dusty lost her way with that look, it was just too much of too much, hair, frills....I'd say that out of all her wigs, I like that one the least. Nice to see mum grinning wildly next to Dusty, I've always loved that shot, even though dad's cut off here. Thanks for posting Josh 😊
