Thanks for the great article Cas. I love her very honest and funny account of the infamous Buddy Rich episode, particularly her use of the fabulously English expression, 'so I just slapped him one!' Brilliant. Thank you for posting! 😊

This often used photo is one of my favourites. Just wondering are there any more from this photo session . I'm guessing it is from 1966 ? Would that be right. Anyone remember where it first appeared?

1966 would be right I'd say Clive. She started wearing her hair with the full fringe in the first half of '66. I've looked through my 60's clippings and I can't find a copy of the photo in them, but that doesn't mean it wasn't used obviously. There is a variation in the shots though, the one on the Anthology cover and the one on the front of the Advocate are slightly different in the movement of her head. And so there may be others as well.

Clive, I've been told that an apple photo was used in Record Mirror in 1966 and that it was more of a profile than face on. Paul sold one either the same or similar through the Bulletin. One where she actually looks to be taking a bite 😊

Yes, there are two versions of the Dusty with apple portrait (and, as Carole G says, there may be more). The shot above was printed on the back of The Silver Collection in 1988. I also have a second one in my scrapbook where she is showing more oher teeth and more of the bitten out apple. This one was printed in the edition of Record Mirror dated November 5, 1966 where the results of the Poll for that year were announced. Of course, Dusty was riding high everywhere at this point: Golden Hits was at No 2 in the best selling albums and she was voted Best British Female Vocalist, Best World Female Vocalist and 3rd Best Dressed Artist. YDHTSYLM was voted 3rd World's Best Disc and her TV series came in at No 10 in the Best TV or Radio Show category. What a year!

I love the brown outfit..The shops are full of tops very similar to that, right now...
I'm assuming she has slim trousers inderneath what look like a tunic-style top.
I like her hair and makeup on that pic too.

Thanks for that Josh!..

Yes, Mary, the hairstyle is the same as the front cover of Simply Dusty. It's definitely the same occasion - the Royal Variety Show '65. I just don't recall seeing Dusty in this gown on subsequent occasions and wonder why. Perhaps she couldn't wear it again on television with the number of viewers having seen it. But I could be wrong. I certainly think it's one of her loveliest.

Here's the same pic from a magazine article, bit paler I know, but without the writing. Both pics have been flipped (parting wrong side) and I'm sure that I have a better one somewhere that's as it should be, but can I find it?!

Also the Royal Variety 65 one in blue dress I recently bought along with a few others from www.worldphotographs.co.uk for quite areasonable price. He sells a lot on Ebay.

I'm a bit fed up with this bloke 'getty' writing all over our Dust's face, where is he, I'm on the warpath.

Always one of my favorites, since I bought an 8 x 10 glossy of it on my first trip to England.

I'm pleased so many of you love this one, it IS a fantastic pic and very topical at the moment!

I think they are two slightly different shots from the same session. The photographer probably had one of those motor drives on his camera...

Those are lovely pictures, looks like the day of the monkey! I wonder if they were taken before or after the monkey got her Probably before, the hair is too perfect.
