Stage play starring virtual Dusty (#p169455)

by Sweetbaby » Fri Apr 03, 2015 12:00 am

Well - another Dusty stage project's been announced: at least no one can fault the casting! From today's online Daily Mail (click to enlarge):

Dusty makes her comeback - in 3D

There's been chatter concerning movies about Dusty Springfield over the years: films that were going to star Adele or Nicole Kidman. They never happened.

There's also been the promise of stage shows. Didn't happen either. Part of the problem — certainly for the stage — has been finding an actress who can act and sing like Dusty.

Well, the folks behind the show Dusty, which begins previews at the Charing Cross Theatre on May 25, have solved the problem.

Dusty Springfield will be a virtual presence thanks to 3D laser technology in the show Dusty, which begins previews at the Charing Cross Theatre on May 25

'Dusty herself is playing Dusty,' said Michael Linnit, a producer who is helping the show's creative team of writers Kim Weild, Jack Bradley, director Chris Cowey and designer Phil Lindley.

Linnit explained that Dusty will be a virtual presence thanks to 3D laser technology, combining images of her with a body-double of the late singer.

'Dusty walks and talks and sings. It's her voice, singing all the hits she's associated with.'

The show will have singers and dancers who will be able to interact with 'Dusty'.

Linnit said that if the experiment works, the team will decide where it will go after its initial run ends on August 22.

   Well what a nice surprise, what great casting! That will put VW and Toksvig attempt on the back burner for a while I would think.

Just found this info on the Charing Cross Theatre page. http://www.charingcrosstheatre.co.uk/sh ... R5KbfnF8o0

Well, this looks intriguing. Nancy Jones, childhood friend?????

A fictional friend, I think. So a fictional account of Dusty's life.

Hmm, I wonder!!!!

It would appear from the write up on the link page that the story only goes as far as Memphis. Well we will have to see.

Should I get to see it at least I will see the "Star" of the show. Went to see both "Chess" and "Piaf" with Elaine Paige on both occasions she was off. Also Michael Flatley in "Lord of the Dance", entered with a leap to great applause, landed badly and that was that, his understudy was great though! I did see EP as Evita.

This sounds like a great idea, and the ticket prices seem quite reasonable.

Would be worth going just to see Dusty and listen to her songs for over 2 hours without interruption

Really hope it's successful

Absolutely not Donella! This show has been in the planning stages for years now and many of Dusty's friends have been involved. So has Paul Howes. It's real and it's Dusty. There have been numerous stops and starts but now it's here and it's Dusty on stage. One of the problems had been how to tell her story and the friend (fictitious) is the one they've obviously decided on. It's not the friends story, it's Dusty's. I'm absolutely thrilled that it's happening at last and I really hope it's a massive success 🙌

Wow, I would absolutely love to see this!! ❤️❤️

Don't know if any of you have seen this, but here is a link to a video of what it is like to be "laser projected". Dusty looks incredibly real, and this is from a show called "Duet Impossible". It's one of the weirdest things I've seen...

Time Will Tell. 🙌 I don't want to throw a spanner in the works, but remember the build-up to Karen Bartlett's book. 😡 However, as Paul Howes is on board, and has been presumably right from the start, the credentials should be there for a Brilliant show.

🙌 Lets hope his input is to the maximum. 🙌 Please

The positive thing is that Dusty will be there!
It's a fairly small theatre so if it does well then maybe the whole thing will tour or go to somewhere larger.

3D is so realistic and I would think 2 hours of Dusty would be 🙌

Yes! The news reports came in this morning and I am very excited that this production has come to fruition.

I've known about the possibility of this show for quite some time and there were a lot of technological issues to be worked out with the 3D images, so I am happy that they have been solved. Bravo to the production team and the producers.

Well....it looks like I am going to start making plans to fly across the pond and see this first hand.

Good advertising is the key to the success of any show these days. So I hope adverts will be in the weekend papers very soon. That is the only way to fill the small theatre for all of the run.

I'm going at the beginning of August 🤔

Wow, I've no clue when, but I will see this one day ❤️❤️ It sounds incredible, especially since there is a chance I will finally get to "see Dusty" in concert.

Fiona, if you see it you'll have to tell me ALL ABOUT IT! I found the video quite a while ago and just thought it was the coolest thing, the laser projection. It's amazing, what they can do. I'd do anything to sing on stage with Dusty like the three ladies, but sadly I've got the voice of a pirate with scurvy 😬

It seems the safest option yet of all the proposed productions. with Paul involved and the real Dusty on stage then it should eclipse all the others. having found it a bit weird all that time back when the sugababes sang with her hologram then i hope that with the advances in technology that it will surpass that. Should be miles better than the VW and Toksvig attempts which I dread. I hope its commercial enough to get a provincial run so that those of us outside London get the chance to see it.

Interesting 🤔 I was wondering why it had gone quiet.

Lets us hope the new "Dusty" will be a roaring success -has a provincial tour- and returns to the West End. I like the fact that it is starting off in a very intimate theatre (267 seats), which I feel will add to the enjoyment.

Hi there, seats M1-3, wanted row K but already booked. Ticketmaster very accommodating if you ring rather than try and book on-line as that is only automatic and you cannot specify seats other than price. We are going 30May matinee, we 3 being Lynn, Fiona and I. Look forward to meeting anyone else who is going to that performance.

Use of any form of recording equipment is usually strictly forbidden in theatres. Of course people take the risk, but in this case being a small venue you would be likely to get caught. It sounds tough but it is all to do with performing rights, copyrights and licenses. Let's hope that a DVD will become available.

(Remember your camera/tablet will light up and the cast will be able to see this. Very distracting),

Re: Stage play starring virtual Dusty (#p170944)

Its all too much for me!! Dusty day is coming and im all hyped up about that, ive got to deal with trains and tubes and escalators at least twice, and now of course, the enormity of what is happening with this show hits me and everytime I think about the actual moment she appears on that stage I just know im going to scream or do something really embarrassing, listening to the interview with Duncan made me cry, he had such a passion about him, and I knew he was the perfect person to write this, and now as it sinks in, it feels like this show could answer all our prayers as Dusty fans, insomuch that there has been such dread amongst many of us about what would actually be included in whatever dusty project did take off, and this removes all that worry from us, its going to be about her, and her music, none of the other stuff. The theatre is lovely and small, and when we went to book our seats for the matinee on may 30th, there were two seats right on the end of row four in the stalls, so I will be right by the aisle, not trapped in and able to get to the exit if it all gets too much lol. Looking forward to seeing other dusty fans old and new on the day, I hope that its everything we ever wanted, and more, especially with the 3D technology.

Neil 😊

Lovely photos of the cast! I wish SO BADLY that I could go

It really sound like a once in a lifetime experience, I agree with you Neil. I feel as though if I saw her on stage, a thing I never believed would even be humanly possible for me, I might do something rash. Listening to the interview with headphones in math class (😊) instead of doing math, I started tearing up a little bit when I realized that it really exists. The large portion of my life that I've been a fan of Dusty, I've only dreamed of seeing her on stage in person, and now that it is a possibility, it makes my heart flutter. I feel like I'm nine again, sitting in the school library with the librarian who introduced me to Dusty's music unknowingly while she went about her card cataloging. wondering what ever came of such a voice, wondering if it would ever die. The fact that this show exists and many passionate people are involved in it is enough for me, even if I never get to see it.

From the DUSTY show Facebook page.... 🍷

Can you help? The producers of DUSTY are urgently seeking a look-a-like to play Einstein, Dusty's faithful companion. Einstein, pictured below at rehearsals last week and dressed in an outfit made by Dusty herself, went around the world with her and figures in several key scenes in the new musical. If you can help, please go to the Contact page at <http://www.thedustyshow.com/> (<http://www.thedustyshow.com/>)

Not happy tonight as Ticketmaster have changed my tickets from row K to another row. Apparently the techie stuff is being set up by row K.

I am now in the middle of row H...which I would not have chosen...too expensive to be messed about like this.

This should have been sorted before the tickets went on sale!!

That is a shame Trek, I would think that a lot of people will be annoyed at being moved ,as K appears to be a good row, as it is the first of the rake and has plenty of leg-room. I must confess it was my first choice but unavailable on booking, so now in M. Hope it doesn't distract from your enjoyment of the show.

I'm not saying it will not be enjoyable Claudia.

However if I had phoned Ticketmaster and asked them to change my tickets to another row they would have said NO ...no exchange or refunds, yet they can make changes when it suits them 🙄

Good job you didn't book K Pat or you would have been moved...lol

Well, pity that Ticketmaster is such a bust Trek! I sure hope it works out for you, truly. I would be so annoyed if my seat had to be changed, but I assume they're working out the kinks as its their first showing of the production. I'm sure when you get here and start watching the show, all of the qualms and annoyances will fade away 😊

Sorry they had to move you Trek, its abit annoying at the time, but I think you will forget about it once you are there. Like Claudia says these things have to be ironed out.

Sorry about seating, they should give you options of where to sit, as i couldnt just be put in the middle anywhere as i get claustrophobic in confined spaces if i cant move away easily. 😞

Well i hope you all enjoy the show and its successful,then it will travel round outside London, i hope. 😊

That's exactly how I felt Liz. Had I known I was going to be put plonk in the middle of a row, I would have had second thoughts, because, I get a bit claustrophobic and it makes me fidget, which is not nice for the people next to me.
