Since Memphis is only about five hours away from where I live I took a drive down there a few weekends ago. I'd like to tell everybody about the three music exhibitions I went to, but I will save that for Non Dusty section. However, I have to share this. The best museum I visited was the one dedicated to my favorite R&B label, Stax. This place is AWESOME! About midway through my visit there was a section on other famous studios in Memphis. I was tickled to see my hometown girl from St. Lou, Ann Peebles mentioned with HI records. Then there was a section on Chips Moman and looking right back at me was the album DIM. I was thrilled it was chosen to represent his studio. The copy of the album they had on display looked like it had been played to death, but the sign next to the album called her the British Soul sensation, etc. Here she was among all these great R&B artists, pretty cool huh? 🤔

Sounds awesome! 😊 How I'd love to visit those places! You didn't take photos by any chance...? (It was probably forbidden anyway...) 🤔

👂 Of all the many ways people try to describe her I like that one. Though we know how much more her voice offered, that kinda' has a nice ring to it, and gives her credit from those that pioneered the R&B sound.

👂 🎵 the British Soul sensation ! 🎵 🎵

I know this is an old thread, but I just got around to reading it. She was just where she deserved to be.
