Sticking with ECUD...How did Dusty's 'take' stack up to the Baby Washington effort?

Yikes!!! I couldn't even listen to the last few second's of That's How Heartaches Are Made by Baby Washington.

IMHO, Baby Washinton does not sing it with any feeling. She sings it for the sake of singing, with no emotion, no feeling, no soul. I felt the same about the intrumentation.

Dusty gets an A++ for this song, it's always been one of my favorites.

Baby Washington gets a D-, I'm being generous, I'm close to giving her a failing grade.

I am not that crazy about the Marveletes version either. No one comes close to Dusty on this one!

Gosh this is another that I can't choose between as both are excellent as is this version from 'my girls'. It was recorded much later in '69 and 1st appeared on the Marvelettes album 'In Full Bloom'. The following year it turned up again on 'The Return Of The Marvelettes' which was essentially just Wanda Rogers & the Andantes. No Katherine or Ann.

All three in my opinion are great. There is also a very good version by The Temptations. Justine 'Baby' Washington was one of Dusty's favourite singers. Dusty however just has the edge.

Dusty's version just has the edge for me...but I do like Baby singing this wonderful song.

I agree with Humboldt (I've just listened to my CD version of the Marvelettes - I love this group). But because I just love Dusty's voice I agree with Brian too. I could do without the Wurlitzer organ sound though! Sometimes I think these comparisons are unfair because Dusty must have had so much more control over her productions. Anyway, this was one of my early Dusty favourites and I still love it.

I do like all three as well. I think Miss Dusty's is best in giving it feeling, I like the richness of Baby's voice, and the arrangement on the Marvelettes is different, but well done.

Oh my god!!

I can see Dusty listening to baby washington and yearning to sing this song!!

Dusty was SO ahead of her time but this was also recorded and released as single by Julie Grant in the UK as was Every day I have to cry.....If either had been released by Dusty as a single surely massive hits.

Heartaches is one of my faves and I love the Hammond organ!!

I rememeber hearing it for the first time on my transistor radio under the bedclothes on a review of ECUD LP.this and Oh Not my baby left me speechless!!

I still think both of these are classics Dusty tracks and somehow she makes the songs her own with her wonderfull phrasing!!

Hope my spelling is OK still in Bansko Bulgaria with my brkoken leg.but hey it is The FIS Ladies world Championships this weekend and the town is buzzing.

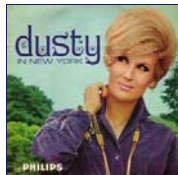

For you Americans Lindsey Vonn has a bad wrist .....from a broken Champagne Bottle!!

Please come and visit Bansko before it gets too commecialised!!

This is definitely a classic Dusty version of a song already recorded by others - I also like the organ and the "constipated woodpecker" percussion which Dusty mentioned in her own review of ECUD. This is one of my favourite songs on the album - I still remember the excitement of opening up the gatefold sleeve and putting this LP on my Danzette record player only to find that there was a fault on "If it Don't Work Out" where the needle kept jumping - I had to send the record back to Philips Records to have it replaced - very frustrating! I have to say that if Dusty hadn't recorded the song I would have been happy to listen to the Baby Washington version - she is also a fine singer!
