I may seem a little ahead of myself but in some parts of the world, it is already March 2nd. Eleven years since we lost Dusty and in some ways it seems like only yesterday. Her music will be with us forever and for that we can be eternally grateful.

April 16th 1939 - March 2nd 1999

For some reason, I always seem to get weepy as this day begins to dawn. So it is tonight. I join everyone here and fans around the world in celebrating the life, the legacy and the music of Dusty Springfield.

Thank you for the music and for the friends, Dusty.. I owe you big time xxx Never forgotten. Never will be.

Richard Allinson on Radio 2's breakfast show has just announced - 'Today is the day we lost Mary Bernadette Isobel Catherine O'Brien' and then went on to play 'Some of your lovin'. 🎵
'Listen you know me - I could play Dusty Springfield records all day'

Well done Richard 🎧 🎵

What beautiful and lovely tributes from everyone, here and elsewhere.

And I second the sentiments in Cor's last message. Thinking of Simon today - we lost an icon; he lost a friend as well and that is tough xx

Re: The 11th Anniversary

by Will

Recently, Simon posted a link to this video in tribute to Madeline's husband, Barry Reeves. The song is called 'Face In A Crowd' and it is one of the most moving and beautiful songs I have ever heard in all my life. I hope no-one will mind if I post it here; today, the lyrics seem very appropriate so listen carefully.. but keep a tissue close by.

This is for Dusty, but also for all those touched by her passing, and for all who remember her today - and especially for everyone here; being a sentimental old fool, I really miss everyone today and wish we were all together having a good hug and a cry xx

I would also like to make a mention of Pat here. She loved and looked out for Dusty for practically all of her adult life and I'm sure she feels a great deal of sadness every time the anniversary comes around.

🌹🙏🌹 I'm stuck here at work, but you all know where my heart is today. I see a lot of posts about Dusty's friends. That's one of the things that drew me to her. Madeline, Simon, Vicky, Pat, and the rest all stuck by her thru thick, thin, and to the end. That told me volumes more about the person (Mary O'Brien) than I could ever read in a book. I wish I could embrace them all. Damn! It's going to be hard to keep from tearing up thru the day. Tomorrow I ski, and I'll dedicate my day to Dusty. ❤️🙏❤️

Michael, Will typically choses the photographs, and does a lovely job. the one that appears today was one Carole G sent me for the 'occasion.'

Really beautiful tributes on this thread, and elsewhere. Surely Dusty would be touched to know how remembered and beloved she is, and will always be, as long as her voice is heard.

On a personal note, I'm glad this day is almost over (in the US). As others have written, it's been a difficult one. At the same time, being with the fan community helps make us get through. Special thoughts to Simon and Pat, and also who were personally close to Dusty. And special love to you all. It is your love of Dusty that keeps this place going.

Yesterday, I woman at the office I work in looked at the Dusty pictures I have posted, and told me that she saw an article about her the day before in the New York Daily News, on the anniversary of her passing. I searched the Daily News website, but I couldn't find any article. But I did come across this: An article from December, 2008 regarding the upcoming Grammy Awards. The columnist said that he thought that the Welsh singer Duffy would come away with several awards. He also said that Duffy was being compared (unjustifiably) to Dusty Springfield. I've heard of Duffy, but I don't know anything about her music. What are your comments?
