I came across this today. It looks like new news and not something rehashed but obviously, I don't have a clue if it's all factual. I still think a movie without Dusty's voice is a cop out and completely misses the point. Not that I'm saying KC doesn't have a great voice, it's just not Dusty's voice.

Looking for the next big thing? Keep your eye on Kristin Chenoweth, a scene-stealing supporting player from "R.V." and "The Pink Panther" who might also be the only FHM cover model with operatic training and near-perfect pitch. The 4-foot-11-inch actress/singer will soon put both talents to the test for her first starring role, in a biopic about "Son of a Preacher Man" diva Dusty Springfield. "I've just read the final script and it's unbelievable," reported Chenoweth, who expects to shoot the flick about the late songstress next summer. "I'll be doing all of the singing and all of the Dusty songs ... it's going to be like 'Walk the Line.' It's about a 10-year period of her life when she really hit it big, and all that she went through ... she had a couple of mental issues, she had a sibling rivalry, she also had abusive parents and she battled her sexuality." Adding that Springfield was "a very petite woman, like me," Chenoweth will also produce the film. ...

The KC film is set in the 60's - up to Dusty in Memphis. It's what's known as a vanity project...made to showcase KC's talent more than anything.
