Probably the heavy rain do you think?

It still looks pretty good to me though and I like the appropriate photo choice.

Rob's is usually stunning - how it is this year I wonder?

You cannot get this rose in Oz. I am hoping that when I come to the UK next year, I can take a few cuttings from someone's Dusty rose and bring it back to Oz to try to propogate in my garden. 😊 It's such a beautiful rose! 🌹

You're more than welcome Kathy, I'm sure between all us Rose growers you'll soon have a whole garden of Dusty's Rose!.....are you thinking of coinciding a trip to England with Dusty day?

Kathy, will they allow you to take a cutting back? You would get so busted if you got caught doing that in America. I knew someone who tried to bring back some Dusty Springfield Sweet Pea seeds and they cut the packet and took out the seeds! 🙄

Thank you for your offer Mark--much appreciated.

No, Nancy they won't let you do that here either if you ask! 😬 In fact they are even more paranoid about it than they are in the US. Mail is often the best way, sent back with something else, but I have brought cuttings back from Hawaii and seeds from a variety of places with no hassles and also sent to a variety of countries (seeds). I didn't know there was a Dusty Springfield sweetpea! I must try and get the seeds for that. I received a number of seeds from my sister in law in Canada last year along with other Christmas presents, no problem. Just don't include them on the customs declaration. 😊

That's gorgeous Mark, I've never had one that looks anywhere near as good as that. I got mine from the very first batch, it was given as a gift and I think not many of them thrived. The rose growers then did whatever rose growers do and made the second lot much stronger. I should really get myself another one. Do we know if they're still available?

I agree with the others..your rose(s) is spectacular..perfect...especially compared to mine..its as if the moment they bloom , the petals are falling off and they have constant leaf fungus.I guess I could be a more attentive gardener.

Thank you everyone!the rosebush is blooming quite well at the moment as are the others in the Garden, Roses always seem to look their best come late Summer, Barbara's a bit more of an expert than me and says it's best to trim buds that aren't doing so well as it will make the remaining buds bloom better!

Hi Carole, there's Dusty rose at www.rosebuddies.com but I don't think they're despatching any until November, sometimes they're on E-bay too, hope this helps! 😊 oh no, sorry Mary..it was a little misleading. No, I just have common, ordinary roses..though it would be nice to have a Boooooooootiful, Dusty rose...hopefully I would be more attentive than I am now 😊😊

I just received in the post a 2008 - 2009 Catalogue from Bill Legrice Roses.

The Dusty Springfield Rose is still available under the Deep Pink Section

"Dusty Springfield Rose (Horludvust) (ss)
Masses of pretty double rosette shaped scented pink flowers.
Growth strong but compact. height approx 2 feet. Selected by The Dusty Springfield Fan Club in memory of of the much loved singer.

Currently priced £6.95 each plus carriage.

Oh wow, I'd love one of these Tom. I'll look around to see whether there's a supplier in Oz.
