The hair do on the pic that Cas posted from the Ideal Home Exhibition is the one I've always affectionately referred to as the Walnut Whip shortish time in '64 and I wondered how many pictures we can find of her sporting it. Here are two to start with....

We've almost got a full circle view in those pics, perhaps the hair just met up in a sort of french pleat at the back. I think a few of the pics Vic, and some of the other 45 ones, were taken on the same day. Her make-up is very expertly done and the hair is identical. But then I w of a polo neck sweater and not mess the hair! Nice selection and I'm sure there are more. Her nose does look odd there Josh, the photo is it's the same there, maybe she just moved and blurred the pic 😊

I know that this looks like Dusty's nose on this photo, but it is not all Dusty. I've blown it up on the computer, and there is something white the guy behind her. It could be a handkerchief or a badge or something on his jacket, but Dusty must have been mortified when she saw th nose. You can clearly see it when you blow it up. If you look at the top of her nose you can see a couple of little flicks sticking out in white handkerchief or even a flower. Some of the others have got white bits sticking out of their pockets too, probably handkerchiefs.

I've slightly changed my mind, it might be her cheek.

Yeah i thought it was the cheek on the other side of her face. Her cheekbones were always so prominent that it probably made it look like now that I look at it more....it really is a weird looking hair-do in some ways.....I'm guessing it wasn't very common at the time...I've never ladies in pics that I have looked at from that time period

Is there a real name for this hair-do?....or was it a creation of Dusty's?? lol

Great pics - I suppose I shouldn't comment on mad hair really given the ste of mine lately ;-), but it is really odd isn't it. Like a side parting kind of bouffetoupe!

A bouffetoupe..

I wonder if she named it like her other wigs ... it's a Doris to me I think.

I can see her pointing an imaginary gun at these pics - like she did on 'Later'... LOL

Oh, I love that one. Dusty's variety in outfits is as amazing as her hair styles sometimes. And I always love to see that big smile.

The "Doris" is the perfect name for the look--it reminds me somewhat of the swirl look Doris Day had sometimes, illustrated below (one of them even went in the same direction as Dusty's. Of course it never reached Dusty's height or sculpted perfection! 🤔 I wonder if Dusty ever have some things in common--comedic talents and passionate love for animals.

Okay, here's Doris along with a few more Dusty Walnut Whips or variations upon images posted previously.
