I had to use my mobile to vote as I had a block put on this type of call on the land line 'cos one son ...who shall remain nameless...ran up a huge bill years ago. I didnt check how much it cost me to vote...I will this week.

So the cost is more than one's individual phone company charges for making the call?

I don't think anyone really knows the answer to that Nancy, all they say is that the call will cost 15p if you are with BT, but it may cost more if you use any other phone company or mobile etc. So personally I don't trust them, as they are not really being up front are they. So my advice is to only make one vote, and leave it to us in this country to get a few extra ones in.

Bumping this up in the hope that I can remind y'all to vote for Katy/Dusty tomorrow night. Here's the list of songs all the acts will be singing.

- This week's songs
- Britney Spears - Baby One More Time
- Cher – Believe
- Diana Ross - Chain Reaction
- Dusty Springfield - Wishing and Hoping
- Elton John - Rocket Man
- Frank Sinatra - That's Life
- Kylie Minogue - Spinning Around
- Lionel Richie - All Night Long
- Madonna - Papa Don't Preach
- Robbie Williams - Let Me Entertain You
- Tom Jones - Green Green Grass of Home

Some strong songs there. Jeremy is out with folk from work tonight and he asked around what song they would like Dusty to sing. Really surprised at the answer which was Spooky.

Let's see if we can make Katy as happy as this for a second week

Thanks for the bump...and let's all cast our votes!
Wendy is to come on and give the exact time and number, as she watches the show.

Carole, will you be back in London again??

I have been recruiting friends ever since the show began and have called upon all my friends to vote for her. i will be repeat voting for ages, im not happy with W & H at all, its not the right song by a mile, in my honest opinion, its up against too many strong songs. Lets all hope that we can get katy through this week , and hopefully, a better song to suit her.

This is the second day of high emotion, I had to cope with vera dying in corrie yesterday and now my stomach is churning and im feeling totally anxious. This is ridiculous. Katy is impersonating dusty. She is not dusty. I must keep telling myself that, or i`ll be sectioned before the weekend is out.

My heart bleeds for you Neil, now concentrate. Don't want you dialling the wrong number because you've got tears in your eyes. Vera will be alright, she's not really dead, it's just pretend.

I really felt they had all improved out of all proportion this week. Katy was good, so was Cher and Lionel and Elton, I thought the weakest was probably Kylie. So keeping our fingers, legs, toes and eyes all crossed for Katy. I've got two votes in so far, then engaged, I think that's a good sign.

I thought Katy did very well. From a distance there was a definite Dusty vibe. She could prob have done with listening more closely to Dusty's take on 'Dancing in the Street', but I thought she was good, nonetheless. As were most of them. For some reason 'Madonna' gets on my t*ts a bit so given her weak vocals I'm not too sorry she's gone. Great to see our LTD girl, Carole on the show as always.

Neil you must be great to live with ha ha ha! This week Jason must have been on constant hankie duty. You and Wendy could probably do a cabaret of your own.

Thanx for making me laugh during a rather miserable week.

Great to see Katy through again after we have all been on tenterhooks. To be honest think she did a better job than I expected as it's not an "obvious" Dusty song for this type of competition. Also great view of Carole on the judges shoulders, and she didn't even stutter when Graham spoke to her! Moira x

Well this forum was a godsend earlier. I was out for dinner earlier when the show was on and got so engrossed that I missed the bit where they put up the voting phone numbers. LTD to the rescue, of course, and problem solved.

I thought Katy was tremendous this week, she just gets better and better - and despite the fears re the song not being strong enough, I thought it was just perfect. And she got a good reaction, too. It was also lovely to hear Simon and Carole getting the chance to talk - both were as good as you would have expected, of course.

And remember - it may not be THE Dusty, but by singing her songs, Katy is bringing Dusty's music to many people - old fans who may have forgotten how fantastic she was, and new ones, who will be enthralled at the quality of those songs and want to know more about the REAL Dusty. So the longer she stays on the show the better, from that perspective.

Superfans - another job well done :)

Well done Katy, she improved yet again and I caught the actual sound of Dusty in her voice in a couple of places during W + H, maybe a bit trivial but the eye makeup isnt right.Nice to see Carole and Simon in constant view.

I agree Will, there is a lot of people out there that loved Dusty in the 60's, they are the people that sit around watching tele on Saturday nights. I think Katy has got that in her favour too.

I agree with you about the eye make up 2. A little TOO drag queen, maybe. Plenty of photos around to show her how it should be done. Dress and hair were great though.

It certainly is but I think I've had my turn in the spotlight thank you very much! We sort of knew after dress rehearsal who would be spoken to and I straight away went into heart racing stress mode But then they changed things in the actual show and I relaxed a little. More fool me. We'd popped in to see Katy in make-up with her hair half done and she had the ear book propped up on her knee and two people working on her hair. I loved the look this week and although, close up, I'd be pushing it to say she really looked like Dusty, on stage it was quite something. The only illusion the winner really has to create is one from the stage because that's what will be required in Vegas, no in your face, unforgiving close-ups.

We were so thrilled that she pulled off Wishin' and Hopin' and next week there should be a big ballad to look forward to.

Still recovering from another late night, those "superfans" sure know how to have a good time 🙄

Katy and her false teeth are now performing Wishin' and Hopin' on YouTube 🙄 🙄 She looks much taller than Dusty on this clip but she really isn't, she's actually only about 5'4". I guess as with Dusty, the illusion of height comes with the hair and heels.

Oh I'm so happy to have been able to finally see a snippet of this. My audio was out of sync but she sounded ok..doesn't sound like Dusty but she sang a good version of the song and if you were looking a bit from the distance..she resembled her. Glad the judges were impressed and put her through. 😊 It was great to see and hear you Carole 😊
Looking forward to hearing what Katy will sing in the next round.

Simon tells me that Katy will be singing You Don't Have to Say You Love Me this week. I've heard her do it on stage in That'll Be The Day and she brought the audience to it's feet. Look forward to it Katy 🙄

That sounds like a winner, and as we know from Madeline, NOT an easy song to sing.

BBC's probably on a pay channel I can't afford. 🤔

And yeah, go ahead, boost my partner's ego! 😏

Oh carole, wouldnt it be wonderful if it was the dress and hair from the bbc show where you screamed your head off? I really hope its YDHTSYLM this week.

I'm hoping for just that Neil 🙏 They've done well so far with the looks, I have this dread of them slapping on a short beehive with heavy fringe! That dress still exists too, Pat has it, but I talked with Simon about whether Katy could use any of Dusty's real dresses, and if we should mention it, but we thought that that might be too upsetting for Pat.

Lets hope Katy does sing YDHTSYLM this Saturday. It will be difficult to follow Dusty but if she can pull it off she should get through.!

playing Dusty would almost seem incomplete if Katy didn't sing YDHTSYLM

as one of the songs....as hard as it is to sing..I hope she WOWs em'. 😊

Such an emotional song - and she does that sort of thing well. IMO she has just got to hold back a bit as she has a strong vibrato that doesn't quite have Dusty's tone to it. Almost too powerful in a way. I think 'Spooky' would have been a good choice for her 'soft' voice but then it would have required an image change which perhaps would not help her fix her take on Dusty in people's minds.

We'll be rooting for her! Carole can you do her eye make-up this week...LOL!

By the way do we know what Pat thinks of her performance?

I'm actually hoping that Katy doesn't have to sing something like Spooky or Look of Love as the breathy voice that Dusty uses on those type of songs, would be almost impossible to pull off I think. We listen to Dusty all the time and know her voice inside out, I doubt the public in general will be that specific when they watch and hear Katy. If she can pull off a great rendition, hit all those notes and keep in touch with Dusty's presentation, then I expect her to do really well. But we shall see 😊

This eye makeup thing is odd really because we think of Dusty with black eye makeup, especially in the early sixties, but looking through the pictures in the Ear Book yesterday, there's a fair sprinkling of blue eye shadow on the colour shots. That might be where they're getting it from, as Katy was sitting in makeup with the book on her knee.

I see what you mean, well, whatever she chooses I wish her all the best of course.

Re the make -up not so much the colour - I think it was too sparkly - Dusty would have had a more matt pale look to the blue from every photo I've seen of her from the sixties. Sounds silly but it looked very drag queen - even more than Dusty would have said about herself! It seems quite important to me and easier than the voice to get right.

Black was Dusty's mod thing so I suppose it was actually very short lived, but so iconic that it's forever associated with her. I loved the way she revamped it - albeit softened for the Pet Shop Boys era. Big eye shadow just suited her so well!

(God I hope Katy doesn't read this she will think I am picking her to bits.. LOL!)

I don't think she will think you're picking her to bits Tim, I'm sure she'd rather it was done right and she'll just be sitting there having it done to her. You're right in that Dusty never did sparkly eyes, or have flicks at the outer corners either, which they've done as well. If, as "superfans", we got more input, those things would get a mention, but on the day, we're expected to keep all things positive so as not to spoil the confidence of our acts. If Katy gets through this week, I'll try and get some feedback to her somehow .... maybe through Andy, her husband. Should anyone want to mail Katy, they can do so at katy@katysetterfield.com and Andy will make sure she gets the messages.

Carole, its THRILLING hearing all this from inside Auntie's house, as it were. I loved the photos you posted, too. In the one with you wearing the green blouse, the guy behind wearing red is one of the Diana superfans. His name is Jim and he's from Glasgow and h
