Thank you again to all who are supporting the Dusty Springfield Fund for Animals.

Here's a ten minute video showing the array of services we are helping to fund. It will make you feel good.

Where am I going?

nancy, are there any scenes of animals actually suffering on the clip? i know its ridiculous but over here, the RSPCA adverts on tv are absolutely awful, I know this is ostensibly to shock people into donating, but for the more "animal sensitive" folks like me, even one image of suffering is enough to keep me awake all night.

Nancy that was a nice film and it was interesting to see how the money we raise will be used. I am happy that thats where the donations are going.

Neil, it shows a dog going into surgery ...a couple of things like that...but no suffering from abuse or neglect. They are really trying to show the positive things going on at the clinic, farm, etc.

I definitely don't think it's going for the shock effect, and hope you will take a look, esp. since you've generoulsy donated twice to the fun.

Nancy-

The video does make you feel great. Everyone should watch it. The people seem so caring.
Proud of LTD for helping them out. And thanks to you for putting it in motion.

You bet, Misty. I have a personal connection to the place, as well. They treated my previous German Shepherd, Frankie, and my current one, Cassie. Frankie had acupuncture treatments for her arthritis that added years to her life. Cassie was hospitalized with a GI ailment and they got her through that too. The new shelter is amazing. You may have seen photos of Laura there with the kitties.

I saw a recent headline that they had taken in 150 guinea pigs from an owner who couldn't handle them. Volunteers came in to help clean them all and now they're finding foster homes and forever homes for them.
