Who can I Turn To (#p147268)

by Cecelia » Thu Feb 27, 2014 10:15 pm

Today I was listening to Who Can I Turn To (When Nobody Needs Me) off of Everything's Coming Up Dusty. It never ceases to amaze me when I hear the vocal range that Dusty had. This is a beautiful song and I am in love with it. Much more then when Frank Sinatra sang it. Another song that isn't on this album but it too gives me goosebumps-What Are You Doing The Rest Of Your Life. Dusty is still and always will be unmatched.

Ewww, I don't even want to imagine Frank singing it, but yeah, Dusty is amazing. WAYDFTROYL is one of Dusty's greatest accomplishments, in my opinion.

You've got good taste, girl.

I can hardly imagine anyone else singing period, I believe Dusty has me spoiled for everyone else. I do love Karen Carpenter though, I could listen to her also, and I believe I have everything the Carpenters ever recorded, even saw them several times. But Dusty still rules. 🙌🙌

She could sing it live too and get that end note 🎤 There is a performance from Saturday Club in '65 that is almost as great as the single.

I get chills listening to it EVERY TIME. It's my absolute favorite Dusty track.

Carole, is there any recorded version of her live performance of the song?

There must be Taylor because I've heard it! I've just gone through all the CD's that Fraser did for me from tapes but it's not on them. I can only presume that I heard it via someone else but at the back of my mind, I feel I was sat in this house listening to it! I just looked in the Complete to check I wasn't imagining things and she definitely did sing in on Saturday Club, so I need to get to the bottom of the mystery now!

Carole it was on one of Fraser's CDs called 'Live Recordings Vol 3' and other bits. CD had a yellow cover. Back of CD says it was from 'Top of The Pops' 1965 on BBC radio.

Some of you may be wondering about the Top of the Pops reference in Clive's posting.

In this instance it has nothing to do with the long-running BBC TV programme. The BBC Transcription Service was set up to overseas broadcasters material put out by the BBC in the UK. Live music performances made by the BBC were put together by the Transcription Service on discs under the name Top of the Pops with links provided by the then compere of Saturday Club, Brian Matthew. This was how a Saturday Club recording would be described as emanating from TOTP.

Presumably Fraser sourced WCITT from a Transcription Service disc. For a while such discs were being sold on the open market, but now magazines such as Record Collector will no longer take adverts for their purchase or sale after the BBC asserted its copyright. The overseas broadcaster was obliged under the licence granted by the BBC to destroy the disc at the end of the licence period. Many apparently didn't comply this obligation and discs ended up being bought and sold in the open market.

Those of you who have the DSB CD The BBC Sessions will find references to TOTP being made by Brian Matthew, even though the bulk of the tracks came from Saturday Club. When Mercury came to issue The Complete BBC Sessions it edited out some of Matthew's spoken intros. The most obvious example is Every Ounce of Strength, where a chunk of the instrumental intro was lost together with Matthew's words.

If overseas broadcasters had complied with the 'destroy condition' in relation to TV programmes, the various programmes from Dusty's BBC TV series would not be available to us now, as they were all retrieved from overseas TV companies.

Well Clive, I've gone through all of Fraser's CD's that I can lay my hands on (and there are many!) but the only Live Vol 3 I have isn't the one with "other bits" on it. I remember two, one called Bits and Pieces and the one you mention with other bits. Both are missing! It's always the one's you want that you can't find. I don't know where else to look 🤔 Goosebumps...Every. Time. And to think she was only 26 when she sang that. INSANE.

Clive, do you have a copy of the CD? I'd die to get my hands on a live version of that song.

Dusty is amazing on this song. We all know she sometimes had self doubts about reaching the notes but i can't see what the fuss was about. Some singers these days seem to think that in order to reach the high notes they have to screech. That's not singing - it's caterwauling 🙄👉👈

Dusty never did this. Despite her own doubts she always managed to control the note, not it control her.

Sue xx
